Washington, DC – For developing innovative ways to educate students and for helping high school dropouts earn their diplomas, Kandy Claybaugh is being honored nationally for her significant contributions to learning in Colorado Springs.

Adelphia Communications and Cable in the Classroom, the cable industry's education foundation, announced today that Claybaugh is the winner of the new Cable's Leaders in Learning Award, which recognizes the most inventive classroom educators, administrators, community leaders, and policymakers who are transforming education from Kindergarten through high school (K-12).

"To be selected as Cable's Leaders in Learning Award winners, these awardees demonstrated dedication to improving learning for all children," said Helen Soulé, Ph.D., executive director of Cable in the Classroom. "They did this by reaching beyond the familiar to support and encourage young people to achieve their best. Armed with a high quality education, young people will be prepared to meet the world that awaits them – and to improve and transform it for their own children."

Claybaugh is being recognized in the Pushing the Envelope category for being the organizing force behind the Digital School at the Citadel Mall in Colorado Springs. The Digital School is an on-line school designed for students who have dropped out or need to recover credits. Students study one course at a time, and as the school is modeled on the concept of a one-room schoolhouse, teachers work to meet the individual needs of the student. Adelphia Communications donated the cable modems for the program.

During the 2003-2004 academic year, 75 students who attended the school earned a diploma, increasing the graduation rate of Colorado Springs School District Eleven by 3.8 percent.

"As some of our dropouts succeed at the Digital School, they regain confidence in their ability to achieve academically," said Claybaugh. "Many enroll in traditional high schools to complete their secondary education. Parents who had given up hope are grateful that their student will earn a diploma rather than a GED.”

Claybaugh and the other Leaders in Learning Award winners are in Washington, D.C. this week to attend a gala awards ceremony, to meet with Members of Congress and education leaders, and to participate in a series of professional development events. Awardees receive a cash prize from Cable in the Classroom, in addition to the trip to Washington.

The awards ceremony, hosted by Bill Kurtis, host of A&E’s American Justice and producer of Investigative Reports and Cold Case Files, will take place on May 17 at the Smithsonian’s National Museum of the American Indian. CNN anchor Wolf Blitzer will interview award-winners during the awards presentations. Marc Summers, host of Unwrapped on the Food Network, John Anderson, an ESPN Sportscenter anchor, and Jeff Johnson, host of the BET documentary series The Cousin Jeff Chronicles, will present the awards. Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives J. Dennis Hastert will receive a tribute from the cable industry. Rising stand-up comedian Ted Alexandro will be performing a ten-minute routine.

“We hope that these awards, and the exceptional work on behalf of learning they honor, will move others to strive for similar excellence and stretch the boundaries of the kind of excellence that is possible in education,” said Soulé. “We at Cable in the Classroom will always have that – and these awardees – close to the heart of our mission.”

The awards fall into four categories:

- General Excellence – Awards given for general excellence in education.
- Pushing the Envelope – Awards given to those redefining the education frontier by using cable content or cable technology.
- Policymaker – Awards given to federal, state, or local policymakers who have contributed to the improvement of K-12 education in the broadest sense;
- Media literacy – An award given in partnership with the National PTA to recognize excellence in advancing media literacy skills.
